

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Summary and policy issues	7
Introduction	15
Chapter 1. COMPETITIVENESS OF SMEs	17
1. Need for competitiveness	17
2. The various factors in SMEs' competitiveness	20
3. Competitiveness strategies	24
Chapter 2. SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNOLOGICAL INFORMATION	29
1. Scientific and technological information as a resource for SMEs	29
2. The different types of scientific and technological information	31
3. Sources of scientific and technological information	34
4. How SMEs find and use scientific and technological information	37
Chapter 3. TRANSFER OF SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNOLOGICAL INFORMATION BY THE UNIVERSITIES	43
1. The role of SMEs in the development of relations between universities and industry	43
2. Analysis of some examples of university-SME co-operation in ten OECD countries	44
3. The university transfer organisations	46
4. Problems encountered in university-SME relations	47
5. Prospects and limitations of bilateral university-SME relations	51
Chapter 4. THE IMPORTANCE OF NETWORKS IN THE TRANSFER OF SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNOLOGICAL INFORMATION	53
1. The development of intermediary structures between universities and SMEs	53
2. How networks and their nature are defined for the purposes of this study	54
3. Why do small manufacturing firms go in for networking?	55
4. The main types of network	56
5. Characteristics of small manufacturing business networks	57
6. The effectiveness of small business networks	63

Chapter 5. GOVERNMENT POLICIES 67

1. Reasons why governments support SMEs 67

2. Programmes in support of technology resource utilisation by SMEs, with special reference to programmes for aiding technology information transfer 69

3. The adequacy of government programmes for SME needs..... 76

Notes and References..... 79

Bibliography 83

Annex: Country Studies 89