

Contents

List of figures	page x
List of tables	xi
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xv
A note on transcriptions	xvi
List of abbreviations	xvii
1 Introduction to morphology and syntax	1
The form–function composite	3
Creativity and recursion	5
Grammar	7
Morphology and syntax	7
Lexicon	9
Three expression types compared	11
Subtypes of lexical expression	12
Classes in the lexicon	14
Some basic concepts in morphology	16
Introduction to the exercises	20
Conceptual outline of chapter 1	25
Exercises	26
2 Morphological processes and conceptual categories	32
Conceptual categories and the problem of labeling	32
The “big ten” morphological processes	40
Methods for representing morphological processes	45
Conceptual outline of chapter 2	54
Exercises	55
3 Morphophonemics	63
Specifying the environments for morphophonemic rules	67
How to pick an underlying form	70
Rule ordering	73
Nasal assimilation in English	75
Types of morphophonemic rules	78
Possession in Ashenininka	81
Summary of notational conventions	83
Conceptual outline of chapter 3	85
Exercises	85

4	Word classes	93
	Nouns	94
	Verbs	104
	Adjectives	116
	Adverbs	117
	Other word classes	118
	Conceptual outline of Chapter 4	126
	Exercises	127
5	Exploring subclasses	133
	Methodology	134
	Conceptual outline of Chapter 5	144
	Exercises	144
6	Constituent structure	152
	A note about syntactic formalisms	152
	Syntax	153
	Tests for constituent structure	158
	Phrase structure rules	165
	Constituent structure trees	166
	Ambiguity	180
	Conceptual outline of chapter 6	182
	Exercises	183
7	Language typology	189
	Morphological typology	190
	Syntactic typology	191
	Examples of an OV and a VO language	194
	Pragmatic constituent order languages	198
	How to analyze the syntactic typology of a language	202
	Conceptual outline of chapter 7	204
	Exercises	204
8	Grammatical relations	210
	Grammatical relations within noun phrases	211
	Grammatical relations in clauses	212
	Systems for organizing grammatical relations	216
	Analyzing grammatical relations systems	221
	Split systems	223
	Conceptual outline of chapter 8	229
	Exercises	229
9	Voice and valence	237
	Valence-decreasing constructions	241
	Valence-increasing constructions	258
	Combinations of valence-related constructions	272
	Conceptual outline of chapter 9	275
	Exercises	277

---

10 Multi-clause constructions	288
Serial verbs	288
Complement clauses	289
Adverbial clauses	295
Clause chains and switch-reference	298
Relative clauses	299
Coordination	307
Conceptual outline of chapter 10	310
Exercises	311
 Glossary	 320
References	349
Subject and language index	357

Figures

1.1	The form–function composite	page 3
1.2	Continuum between full lexical words and grammatical morphemes	15
1.3	Venn diagram showing the interrelated meanings of terms “stem” and “root,” with examples from English	19
3.1	“Alice looked”	64
3.2	“Alice floated”	64
3.3	“Alice played”	65
3.4	The morphophonemic machine	74
7.1	The index of synthesis (the number of morphemes per word)	190
7.2	The index of fusion	191
10.1	A continuum of grammatical integration	287

Tables

A	The International Phonetic Alphabet (revised to 1993): Consonants (pulmonic)	page xxi
B	International Phonetic Alphabet: Vowels	xxii
1.1	A comparison between full lexical words and grammatical morphemes	16
2.1	A comparison between derivational and inflectional categories	39
3.1	Basic data on English plurals	72
3.2	More data on English plurals	73
3.3	Complete derivations for some English plurals	74
3.4	Faulty derivations for English plurals	75
3.5	Asheninka possessed nouns	81
4.1	Personal pronouns of English	119
5.1	Some minor class verbs of English	135
5.2	Some minor class nouns of English	137
5.3	A classification of some Russian nouns	143
6.1	Syntactic categories used in this book	154
7.1	Summary of Greenberg's Universals (from appendix 2 of Greenberg 1963)	193
10.1	Kâte switch-reference markers	299
10.2	Panare switch-reference markers	300