
Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction 1

1	Theoretical Approaches	5
	Civil Status and Economic Status	5
	Civil Status and Social Status: Free versus Slave, Free Labor versus Forced Labor	12
	The Social Stratification Model	16
	The Definition of Freedom and Its Problematic	18
	The Different Dimensions of Unfreedom	20
2	Medieval Slavery in a New Geopolitical Space	25
	The Provenance of Slaves	25
	Civilian Captives, Prisoners of War, and Christian Marriage	27
	The Slave Trade: The New Commercial Map of the Medieval World	57
3	Slavery, a Component of a Medieval Society	82
	The Language of Slavery	82
	Slavery and the Other Categories of a Medieval Society	93
	Slaves in the City: Participation in Artisanal and Economic Urban Life	95
	Slaves in the Countryside	107
	Freedmen in Society	120
4	Evolution of the Concept of Unfreedom	131
	The Byzantine Church and the Idea of Slavery	131
	The Christian Identity of the Byzantine Slave	139

The Slave as Human Being: A Change in Mentality	153
The Slave, the Free Person, and the Public Authorities	166
Conclusion: Slavery, Freedom, and Unfreedom	177
Appendixes	183
Abbreviations	201
Notes	205
Bibliography	265
Index	301