Table of contents

Acknowledgements

List of contributors

Introduction

Etsuyo Yuasa, Tista Bagchi & Katharine Beals

Publications by Jerrold M. Sadock

PART I. PRAGMATICS

Assertoric inertia, (quasi) performatives, and presupposition accommodation

Almost forever

Laurence R. Horn

Sadock and the Performadox

William G. Lycan

Expressing regret and avowing belief: Sadock's expositive adverbials, Moore's Paradox, and performative and quasi-performative verbs

Jay David Atlas

A story of Jerry and Bob

Andy Rogers

Speech acts, cognition, and language use

Conventionalization in indirect speech acts: Evidence from autism

Katharine Beals

Pseudo-apologies in the news

M. Catherine Gruber

Towards an intonational-illocutionary interface

Tista Bagchi

PART II. AUTOLEXICAL GRAMMAR

Interface between morphology and other grammatical levels

Atkan Aleut “unclitic” pronouns and definiteness: A multimodular analysis

Anthony C. Woodbury
Nominalization affixes and multi-modularity of word formation
Yoko Sugioka

No more phology!: West Greenlandic evidence against a morphological tier of linguistic representation
Sylvain Neuvel

Wait'll (you hear) the next one: A case for an enclitic preposition and complementizer
Hans Smessaert

Aleut case matters
Jason Merchant

Syntax-semantics interface

English derived nominals in three frameworks
Frederick J. Newmeyer

Out of control: The semantics of some infinitival VP complements
Barbara Abbott

An automodular perspective on the frozenness of pseudoclefts, and vice versa
Haj Ross

Negation as structure building in a home sign system
Amy Franklin, Anastasia Giannakidou & Susan Goldin-Meadow

Autolexical Grammar in interdisciplinary research

Constraining mismatch in grammar and in sentence comprehension:
The role of default correspondences
Elaine J. Francis

Evidence for grammatical multi-modularity from a corpus of non-native essays
Derrick Higgins

Autolexical Grammar and language processing: Mismatch and resolution in the cognitive representation of syntactic and semantic knowledge
Barbara Luka

Topic index

Name index