

Contents

Contributors	vi
Acknowledgements	viii
Introduction: Danish Literature as World Literature
Dan Ringgaard and Mads Rosendahl Thomsen	1
1 'History of the Danes': Saxo the Grammarian and Saxo the Rune Master Pernille Hermann	11
2 Travelling Ballads: The Dissemination of Danish Medieval Ballads in Germany and Britain, 1760s to 1830s Lis Møller	31
3 Ludvig Holberg: A Man of Transition in the Eighteenth Century Svend Erik Larsen	53
4 A Man of the World: Hans Christian Andersen Karin Sanders	91
5 Straight into the Bliss of Knowing: Søren Kierkegaard's Influence on Franz Kafka Isak Winkel Holm	115
6 Modern Denmark: Brandes – Jacobsen – Bang Annegret Heitmann	141
7 Towards a New World: Johannes V. Jensen and Henrik Pontoppidan Jon Helt Haarder	167
8 Out of Africa, into World Literature Lasse Horne Kjøeldgaard	193
9 Breaking New Ground – Danish Poets in the Intersection Between Modernism and Postmodernism Anne-Marie Mai	209
10 'A faithful, attentive, tireless following': Cultural Mobility, Crime Fiction and Television Drama C. Claire Thomson and Jakob Stougaard-Nielsen	237
Index	269