

---

Contents

List of illustrations ix

List of abbreviations xi

Preface and acknowledgments xix

Maps xxi

INTRODUCTION: CONTEXTS AND SOURCES I

Adela and the Thibaudians 4 • The sources 6 • Lost documents 11 •

Geographic and diachronic perspectives 14

1. FAMILY TIES 22

Adela's birth and early years 23

Born to a king 23 • Royal blood 25 • Childhood education 29 • Summary 34

Marriage politics 34

The sources 34 • The political context: a Thibaudian perspective 39 • Reacting to the loss of Tours 41 • The 1060s 47 • The 1070s 50 • The early 1080s: tying the knot 52 • Alliance: to what purpose? 55 • Summation 59

Stephen-Henry's inheritance 60

Accumulating multiple counties 62 • Odo II's division (1037) 64 • Thibaud III's division (1089) 67 • Stephen-Henry and Adela 68

2. HUSBAND AND WIFE 71

Personal affairs 71

Joint Lordship 74

Adela's attested activities, c.1089–1096 75 • Stephen-Henry alone? 81 • Assessing the roles ascribed to the count's wife in charters 84 • Adela's roles as a count's wife 88 • Political considerations 91

Adela's first regency 94

Stephen's first crusade 94 • Adela's comital rule 96

Stephen-Henry's return 101

Consolidating comital authority: family affairs 101 •

Consolidation in the fragmented east 104

Stephen-Henry's final crusade 111

Chapter conclusions 116

3. FROM WIFE TO WIDOW: ADELA'S ADMINISTRATION 118

Stephen-Henry's fatal crusade 119

Adela's second regency 119 • Stephen-Henry's death 123

Widow and mother 126

Early anniversary-related grants and economic development 126 • Thibaudian interests in the diocese of Soissons 134 • Adela's further interventions (to c.1105) 140 • Adela's administrative activities, largely 1106–c.1108 149

Adela's officials 156

Chapter conclusions 163

4. WIDOWED COUNTESS: ADELA'S POLITICAL AGENDA 169

Sister and brothers 170

Henry's contested accession 170 • Adela and Henry's success in Normandy 173 • The Maine connection 178 • Adela and bishop Hildebert 180 • Breton connections: lay lords 183 • Archbishops of Dol 188 • Baudri of Bourgueil 191 • Baudri and Adela 197 • Summary 204

Countess and kings 206

An excommunicate king 206 • Jockeying for power in Berry 208 • William's marriage and move to Sully 212 • Balancing interests and obligations 219 • Conflict in the frontiers of Brie 223 • Summary 230

5. LORDSHIP AND PIETY 232

Politics and the peace 234

Bishop, king, and count(s) 234 • Crusading and the peace 237

The politics of ecclesiastical reform 244

Reform at the diocesan level 246 • Monastic reform and religious renewal 247

Bishop Ivo and comital politics 255

Conflict between bishop and countess 255 • Ivo's support for Adela in other conflicts 264 • Summary 276

Adela and the Roman church 278

In the footsteps of her father and father-in-law 278 • Countess Adela 288 • Pope Paschal's tour of France and later events 296 • Summation 301

6. ADELA, HER BROTHER, AND A NEW FRENCH KING 304

Mother, son, and the sources 307

Fidelity pledged and promises broken 311

Cooperation with the king 311 • Causes for Thibaudian–Capetian conflict: particular grievances 314 • Causes for Thibaudian–royal conflict: Fulk V of Anjou 317

First blows 322

Why Brie? 322 • A behind-the-lines view of escalating hostilities 324 •

Other allies of the counts of Blois 330

A possibility for peace 335

Final engagements and a negotiated settlement 335 • Keeping the peace 340 • King Louis as peace keeper 343 • A settlement for Normandy? 347 • Conclusions 349

7. FROM COUNTESS TO NUN 351

The peace unravels 352

The capture of William of Nevers and eremitical intervention 352 • ‘Phoney war’ 358

Winning an honorable retirement 363

The contest for Normandy: a family struggle 363 • Adela’s patronage and the war effort 366 •

Further hostilities and a separate peace with Fulk V 368 • Conflict continues on other fronts 372 • The council of Rheims and Adela’s activities in 1119 374 • Negotiating a general peace 378 • Thibaudian perspectives on the peace of 1120 385 • Unforeseen accidents: the death of William Atheling 390 • Unexpected events: the birth of Odo ‘le Champenois’ 393 • Summary 402

Retirement and death 405

Monastic retreat 405 • Adela at Marcigny 412

CONCLUSIONS: ADELA AND FEMALE LORDSHIP 419

Political conjunctures: curbing the counts of Anjou 421 • Stephen-Henry and Adela: joint lordship 426 • Regencies and widowhood 427 • Final appreciation: Adela and female lordship 435