

Contents

General Editor's Preface	v
Acknowledgements	vii
List of contributors	xiii

Introduction: The many Italies of the Middle Ages	1
David Abulafia

PART I RULERS AND SUBJECTS

1 Cities and communes	27
Edward Coleman
Introduction	27
Origins of the communes	29
Civic institutions, office-holding, and law	35
Warfare and city leagues	42
Urban elites and factionalism	48
Conclusion	56

2 Law and monarchy in the south	58
Hiroshi Takayama
Norman unification	59
The Norman kingdom of Sicily	62
The kingdom as a political entity	63
Kingship and the royal court	64
Norman administration	66
The kings' ambitions and diplomacy	68
Transition	69
Frederick II	70
Restoration of royal authority	71
The Norman inheritance	72
A changed kingdom	73
The dismemberment of Frederick II's dominion	75

Charles of Anjou and the two kingdoms	76
The Sicilian Vespers and arrival of the king of Aragon	79
The two kingdoms of Sicily and Naples	80

3 Papal Italy	82
Brenda Bolton
Introduction	82
The pope and the emperors	86
The papal recovery	89
Institutions	91
North and south	93
Papal itineration	95
Development and support for the faith	98
Defending the faith: heresy	100
The Jubilee	102
Conclusion	102

4 The rise of the signori	104
Trevor Dean
Piacenza	109
Verona	111
Milan	114
Ferrara	119
Some common themes	121

PART II SOCIAL CHANGE AND THE COMMERCIAL REVOLUTION

5 Trade and navigation	127
Marco Tangheroni
Italian maritime expansion in the western Mediterranean	127
Italian maritime expansion in the eastern Mediterranean	131
Italian cities and the Mediterranean, 1200-1350	134
Technical and institutional aspects of Italian maritime commerce	140
Maritime commerce and the Italian economy	144

6 Material life	147
Patricia Skinner
Buildings and living conditions	148
Personal possessions: the domestic life	150
Tools and equipment	154
Food and ephemera	155
Luxury items	157
Conclusions	159

7 Rural Italy	161
Duane Osheim
The rural landscape: castelli and lords	161
Parallel developments in southern Italy	167
The rural communes	168
The rural economy	176
Conclusion	182

8 The family	183
Steven Epstein
General themes	184
Wives, husbands, and children	187
The role of government	190
Names	192
Stories of family life	194

9 Language and culture	197
Alberto Varvaro
Language in Italy c.1000	197
Linguistic change up to 1300	199
Cultural centres, schools, and libraries	201
The first documents in the vernacular and para-literary traditions	204
The establishment of literary traditions	207

PART III THE OTHER FACES OF ITALY

10 The Italian other: Greeks, Muslims, and Jews	215
David Abulafia
The Greeks	217
The Muslims	222
The Jews	228
Conclusion	236
11 Sardinia and Italy	237
Marco Tangheroni
The papacy and Sardinia: political and ecclesiastical intervention	238
The political penetration of Pisa and Genoa in the eleventh and twelfth centuries	241
Judicial dynasties and mainland lords	243
The end of the judicatures and Pisan Sardinia	244
Pisan and Genoese economic activity in Sardinia: modes and consequences	245
The Catalan–Aragonese conquest and the end of Pisan Sardinia	248
Conclusion	251
David Abulafia
Further reading	255
Glossary	271
Chronology	275
Maps	282
Index	287