

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction	xiii
1. Well-Being	I
1.1 The Concept of Well-Being	I
1.2 Theories of Well-Being	4
1.3 Well-Being and Time	18
1.4 A Paradox	30
1.5 Conclusions and Implications	40
2. The Evil of Death	47
2.1 Instrumental Value and Difference-Making	47
2.2 Overdetermination, Preemption, and Causation	52
2.3 Genuine Evils, Fitting Attitudes, and the Symmetry Problem	60
2.4 Harm	65
2.5 An Argument For the Difference-Making Principle	69
3. Existence and Time	73
3.1 Is All Badness Temporal?	74
3.2 Could Death Be a Temporal Evil?	79
3.3 When Is Death Bad?	84
3.4 Objections	92
3.5 The Value of Nonexistence	98

4. Does Psychology Matter?	113
4.1 When Is it Worst to Die?	113
4.2 The Cure	117
4.3 Abortion	121
4.4 Desires and Time-Relative Interests	126
4.5 Cows	147
5. Can Death be Defeated?	155
5.1 The James Dean Effect	157
5.2 Old Age and Progeria	164
5.3 Previous Gains and Discounts	166
5.4 Realism	170
Conclusion	177
Bibliography	181
Index	191