

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	ix
-----------------	-----------

INTRODUCTION

Just as the Twig Is Bent: Civic Education in an Age of Doubt	xv
BRADLEY C. S. WATSON

Part I: Civic Education and the Western Tradition

1 Critical Consciousness and Liberal Education	3
BRUCE S. THORNTON
2 Autonomy, Loyalty, and Civic Piety	15
WILLIAM DESMOND
3 On Liberty, Or, How John Stuart Mill Went Wrong	29
ROGER KIMBALL

Part II: Civic Education and the American Regime

4 The Commerce of Ideas and the Cultivation of Character in Madison's Republic	49
COLLEEN A. SHEEHAN
5 Is the Purpose of Civic Education to Transmit or Transform the American Regime?	73
JOHN FONTE

6	Closing the Racial Gap: Culture Matters	113
	ABIGAIL THERNSTROM
7	Should Felons Vote? A Paradigmatic Debate over the Meaning of Civic Responsibility	137
	THOMAS L. PANGLE
	Part III: Civic Education and the University
8	Barbarians at the Gates: Enemies of Character	155
	JOSIAH BUNTING III
9	Liberal Education and Civic Education for Our Time	165
	STEPHEN H. BALCH
10	Restoring the Essential Experience of Liberal Learning: Transcendence and the Study of Politics in the University	177
	TIMOTHY FULLER
	ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS	189
	INDEX	193