

CONTENTS

PREFACE 9
CHAPTER ONE: SOLOVIEV'S JUDEO-RUSSIAN WISDOM 13
Introduction: Russian Jewry in the time of Soloviev 15
Soloviev's general development 24
Soloviev, the Jews and Judaism 29
The flawed wholeness of the Jewish nation 29
The encounter with J. Rabinowitz 36
Judaism, Judeo-Christianity and the Law 40
Talmudic Judaism and integral Christianity 43
Sophia (Soph-Jah) and Judaic/Christian pan(en)theism 47
Jewish responses to Soloviev 53
CHAPTER TWO: BULGAKOV AND THE SACRED BLOOD OF JEWRY 59
Bulgakov: wrestling with Soloviev's heritage 61
The Jews in Bulgakov's thought: a preview of the main problem 66
Judaism and the Old Testament in Bulgakov's early philosophy 69
Two Cities (1906-1910) 70
The Unfading Light (1917) 74
Bulgakov and Kabbalah 80
Bulgakov and Jewry (1): in Russia – the shadow of the Revolution 82
An early essay in Christian Zionism (1915) 82
The paradox of Bulgakov's anti-Semitism 91
Bulgakov's recollections of the 1905 and 1917 Revolutions 101
Bulgakov and Jewry (2): in exile – the shadow of the Holocaust 105
The Biblical conception of blood and nation 108
Sophiology and sacred blood 112
The blood-chosenness of the Jews after Christ 123
The collective fate of Israel and the remnant 127
A critical development of Bulgakov's ideas 134
A Messianic Jewish reading of Bulgakov? 134
A (covert) two-covenant reading of Bulgakov? Judas, Saul, and Paul 138
Conclusion 147
Bulgakov in two contemporary Russian-Jewish interpretations 149
CHAPTER THREE: N. BERDYAEV, M. GERSHENZON AND L. SHESTOV: JEWISH AND RUSSIAN NIHILISTS OF THE SPIRIT 153
The three pessimists 155
Berdyaev and Gershenzon 157
Nicolai Berdyaev 157
Mikhail Gershenzon 161

Between Slavophilism and Bolshevism 165
Berdyaeu and Gershenzon on Slavophilism 165
Gershenzon, Berdyaeu and the Bolshevik Revolution 174
Gershenzon and Vyacheslav Ivanov after the Revolution 177
1922: Berdyaeu and Gershenzon on history 183
Berdyaeu on history and Jewry 184
Gershenzon and Jewish destiny 188
Pushkin-Ahasuerus 188
Apotheosis of Jewishness: Gershenzon against Land, Torah and People 191
The 'Judaization' of Berdyaeu 197
Lev Shestov 200
Shestov on Gershenzon 203
Shestov on Buber and Judaism 205
Shestov on Berdyaeu 207
Shestov, Bulgakov and Steinberg 211
Bulgakov on Shestov: 'fideist without faith' 212
Steinberg on Shestov: reveal the 'black man' 214
Judaism beyond the Pale: superseding both Testaments 220
Gershenzon and Shestov – differences and similarities 220
V.V.Zenkovsky: the dialectic of Jewry and Christianity 225
 CHAPTER FOUR: VASILY ROZANOV (AND PAVEL FLORENSKY) 227
'Sinful slave Vasily...' 229
Rozanov's intellectual development. 236
Early Rozanov: Judaism over Christianity 246
'Judaism' (1903) 246
The immanent church of conciliar Jewry 249
1. Circumcision 249
2. Sabbath 254
3. Mikveh 258
Astarte, Egypt and Judaism 262
The agonies of Marcionism 262
Middle Rozanov: Russia expels the Jew within 267
Two Jewish encounters in the Beilis years 271
Mikhail Gershenzon 271
Aaron Steinberg 283
Rozanov's Judeophobic outpourings (1911-1914) 288
Florensky: Rozanov's secret helper 294
Florensky's Jewish writings 298
Ritual murder and the eucharist 301
The flaw in Florensky's two-tiered logic 304
Florensky, Romans 11 and Jewish blood 307
Florensky's 'Kabbalistic scholarship' 312
Florensky: the broader context 313
Occultism and magic 313
Political totalitarianism 315
Katsis and Florensky's 'Christian exegesis' 317

Florensky's position in Russian religious thought 319
Name-worship and symbolism 322
Iosef Davydovich Levin: "I met Florensky once...." 326
Christianity and anti-Semitism: final words 330
 CHAPTER FIVE: L. KARSAVIN AND A. STEINBERG: RUSSIA AND ISRAEL SYMPHONICALLY
INTERWINED 335
Two friends, two worlds 337
Eurasianism, Volphila, Autonomism 342
The Karsavin-Steinberg exchange 347
Karsavin 347
Steinberg 360
Inflected philosophy: Jews and Russians among the Greeks 367
Steinberg, Jewishness and philosophy: How strange that I am a Jew. 367
Jewishness and Russianness in philosophy 378
Jewish Platonized Kantianism 379
Steinberg and Jewishness in philosophy 386
The boundaries between the believer and the world 391
Core and periphery, Orthodoxy and Revolution 391
The case of Georgy Fedotov 393
The case of Alexander Meier 396
Karsavin: rootless Christianity 399
"A Study in Apologetics" 400
Karsavin: experiencing the Jewish vision of God (Poem on Death) 410
The tortured Jewess 410
Contrary couples 412
Karsavin's and Steinberg's triadology 417
Israel and the living God 422
The end of the Poem on Death 428
The Inquisitor and the Jewess-'conversa' 429
The final drama 432
The role of the Jewess in the final drama 435
Jews and personality 436
Final years: London, Lithuania, Siberia 439
Abez and a final Jewish encounter 441
Death and burial 442
 CHAPTER SIX: SEMYON FRANK: FROM russkiy yevrei TO russkiy yevropeetz
Frank: the Jew as universal man 447
Frank's philosophy 455
Frank and Gershenzon 462
Frank's universalism 463
Frank and Gershenzon from Landmarks to Revolution 469
Gershenzon and Frank: the wisdom of Pushkin 472
Pushkin between Frank and Gershenzon 473
Pushkin's message for contemporary Russia 475

Russian-Jewish Wisdom 482
Frank and German-Jewish philosophy 485
Cohen and Frank 486
Frank and Cohen on suffering 490
Frank and Rosenzweig 495
The argument of The Star and Frank's critique 496
The Star 496
The critique 498
Evaluation of Frank's critique 500
Frank and O.Goldberg 507
Conclusion 508
 CONCLUSION: SOLOVIEV'S HEIRS: THE THIRD GENERATION 511
Alexander Men: Bulgakovian Judeo-Christianity? 511
The polemic against Men's Jewish Christianity 514
N.Feingold and S.Lyosov 514
Men in the context of post-Auschwitz theology 516
Benevich: no Jew, no gentile – no Russian? 520
Conclusion: Russian Orthodoxy and Jewish-Christian dialogue – a note 522
 BIBLIOGRAPHY 527
 INDEX 547