

CONTENTS

Notes on contributors	viii
Acknowledgements	xiii

Introduction: theory's nine lives Jane Elliott and Derek Attridge	1
---	---

PART I

Assessing the field 17

1 Philosophy after theory: transdisciplinarity and the new Peter Osborne	19
2 Theory as a research programme – the very idea Cary Wolfe	34
3 Theory after critical theory William Rasch	49
4 Extinct theory Claire Colebrook	62

PART II

Between theory and practice: judgement, will, potentiality 73

5 Perception attack: the force to own time Brian Massumi	75
--	----

6	The will of the people: dialectical voluntarism and the subject of politics Peter Hallward	90
7	The persistence of hope: critical theory and enduring in late liberalism Elizabeth A. Povinelli	105
8	The practice of judgement: Hannah Arendt's 'Copernican revolution' Linda M. G. Zerilli	120
PART III
Rethinking the politics of representation		133
9	When reflexivity becomes porn: mutations of a modernist theoretical practice Rey Chow	135
10	The canny subaltern Eva Cherniavsky	149
11	Theory after postcolonial theory: rethinking the work of mimesis Simon Gikandi	163
PART IV
Biopolitics and ethics		179
12	After life: swarms, demons and the antinomies of immanence Eugene Thacker	181
13	Inclining the subject: ethics, alterity and natality Adriana Cavarero	194
14	The person and human life Roberto Esposito	205
PART V
Renewing the aesthetic		221
15	The wrong turn of aesthetics Henry Staten	223

16	Literature after theory, or: the intellective turn Laurent Dubreuil	237
17	The liberal aesthetic Amanda Anderson	249
PART VI
	Philosophy after theory	263
18	The arche-materiality of time: deconstruction, evolution and speculative materialism Martin Hägglund	265
19	Concepts, objects, gems Ray Brassier	278
20	Pharmacology of spirit: and that which makes life worth living Bernard Stiegler	294
	Index	311