

Contents

Series Editor's Foreword xi

Acknowledgments xiii

PART I Introduction

Chapter 1 Introduction: Food in Children's Literature 3
KARA K. KEELING AND SCOTT T. POLLARD

PART II Reading as Cooking

Chapter 2 Delicious Supplements: Literary Cookbooks as Additives to Children's Texts 21
JODIE SLOTHOWER AND JAN SUSINA

PART III Girls, Mothers, Children

Chapter 3 Recipe for Reciprocity and Repression:
The Politics of Cooking and Consumption in Girls'
Coming-of-Age Literature 41
HOLLY BLACKFORD

Chapter 4	The Apple of Her Eye: The Mothering Ideology Fed by Best-selling Trade Picture Books	57
	LISA ROWE FRAUSTINO

PART IV

Food and the Body

Chapter 5	Nancy Drew and the "F" Word	75
	LEONA W. FISHER
Chapter 6	To Eat and Be Eaten in Nineteenth-Century Children's Literature	93
	JACQUELINE M. LABBE
Chapter 7	"Voracious Appetites": The Construction of "Fatness" in the Boy Hero in English Children's Literature	105
	JEAN WEBB

PART V

Global/Multicultural/Postcolonial Food

Chapter 8	"The Eaters of Everything": Etiquettes of Empire in Kipling's Narratives of Imperial Boys	125
	WINNIE CHAN
Chapter 9	Eating Different, Looking Different: Food in Asian American Childhood	137
	LAN DONG
Chapter 10	The Potato Eaters: Food Collection in Irish Famine Literature for Children	149
	KAREN HILL MCNAMARA
Chapter 11	The Keys to the Kitchen: Cooking and Latina Power in Latin(o) American Children's Stories	167
	GENNY BALLARD

Chapter 12	Sugar or Spice? The Flavor of Gender Self-Identity in an Example of Brazilian Children's Literature	181
	RICHARD VERNON

PART VI

Through Food the/a Self

Chapter 13	Oranges of Paradise: The Orange as Symbol of Escape and Loss in Children's Literature	193
	JAMES EVERETT
Chapter 14	Trials of Taste: Ideological "Food Fights" in Madeleine L'Engle's A Wrinkle in Time	207
	ELIZABETH GARGANO
Chapter 15	A Consuming Tradition: Candy and Socio-religious Identity Formation in Roald Dahl's Charlie and the Chocolate Factory	221
	ROBERT M. KACHUR
Chapter 16	Prevailing Culinary, Psychological, and Metaphysical Conditions: Meatballs and Reality	235
	MARTHA SATZ
Chapter 17	"The Attack of the Inedible Hunk!": Food, Language, and Power in the Captain Underpants Series	243
	ANNETTE WANNAMAKER
Contributors		257
Index		263