

Table of contents

Foreword	3
Breaking through on trade: How a changing world dynamic affects policy by Przemyslaw Kowalski and Susan F. Stone	9
Integration of industrialised and emerging economies has shaped globalisation.....	10
The concept of comparative advantage has been pivotal to studying this change	11
Is comparative advantage still relevant today? What do the patterns of trade tell us?.....	12
What kind of policies support a dynamic comparative advantage?	15
Conclusions	21
References	23
Part I. Is comparative advantage still relevant today?	25
Chapter 1. Comparative advantage: The theory behind measurement by Alan V. Deardorff	27
The Ricardian trade model	28
A variable-cost trade model	30
Measuring comparative advantage	31
Conclusions	36
References	38
Chapter 2. Production, consumption and trade developments in the era of globalisation by Przemyslaw Kowalski and Ricardo H. Cavazos Cepeda	41
Globalisation, trade, FDI and growth developments.....	42
Overview of production, employment and consumption developments in OECD countries.....	46
Selected trade developments	57
Conclusions	65
References	68
Annex 2.A. Figures	69
Chapter 3. Comparative advantage and export specialisation mobility by Przemyslaw Kowalski and Novella Bottini	81
Comparative advantage hypothesis and economic policy.....	83
Measurement of comparative advantage and meaning of RCA indices.....	85
Overview of export specialisation patterns by broad sector.....	88
Dynamics of specialisation at the product level.....	90
Conclusions	105
References	109
Annex 3.A. Country trade shares and RCA indices	112
Annex 3.B. Mobility indices	113
Annex 3.C. Figures and tables.....	114

Chapter 4. Changing patterns of trade in processed agricultural products by Peter S. Liapis	121
What agricultural products are considered processed?	123
Data	123
Trends in trade and production.....	124
Revealed comparative advantage and growth.....	131
Conclusions	146
References	148
Chapter 5. Have changes in factor endowments been reflected in trade patterns? by Susan F. Stone, Ricardo H. Cavazos Cepeda and Anna Jankowska	151
The Heckscher-Ohlin theory of international trade.....	152
Trends in factor endowments	153
Measuring factor content.....	161
Ranking factor content	163
Conclusions	183
References	187
Annex 5.A. Data details	189
Part II. What kind of policies support a dynamic comparative advantage?	195
Chapter 6. Comparative advantage and trade performance: Policy implications by Przemysław Kowalski	197
Sources of comparative advantage	198
Empirical methodology	199
Results	206
Conclusions	215
References	220
Annex 6.A Details of data	222
Annex 6.B. Table and figures.....	224
Chapter 7. The role of intermediate inputs and equipment imports in dynamic gains from trade by Susan F. Stone and Ben Shepherd	233
What do we know about dynamic gains?.....	235
Measuring the dynamic effects: Methodology and data.....	239
Results	241
Conclusions	253
References	257
Chapter 8. Determinants of diffusion and downstreaming of technology-intensive products in international trade by Lauren Deason and Michael J. Ferrantino	261
Background	263
Empirical strategy and data description	265
Stylized facts and anomalies	267
Conclusions	277
References	281
Annex 8.A. Tables.....	284

Chapter 9. Intellectual property reform and productivity enhancement
by Ricardo H. Cavazos Cepeda and Douglas C. Lippoldt	295
Motivation	296
Literature review	297
Summary	299
Analytical approach and data	300
Results	302
Conclusions	303
References	307
Annex 9.A. Figures and tables	309
Chapter 10. The impact of export restrictions on raw materials on trade and global supply
by Frank van Tongeren	317
The what, why and who in export restrictions	319
Economic effects of export restrictions	324
The inefficiency and ineffectiveness of export restrictions	326
Conclusions	328
References	330
Chapter 11. Comparative advantage and structural change: Toward a complementary policy regime
by Peter A. Petri and Michael G. Plummer	333
Comparative advantage and structural change	335
Complementary trade and structural policies	337
Trade liberalization strategies	339
Structural change strategies	341
Conclusions	343
References	346