

Contents

1 Introduction	1
Donald L. Opitz, Annette Lykknes, and Brigitte Van Tiggelen

Part I Representing Collaboration

2 The Making of a Bestseller: Alexander and Jane Marcet's Conversations on Chemistry	19
Jean-Jacques Dreifuss and Natalia Tikhonov Sigrist
3 “Not merely wifely devotion”: Collaborating in the Construction of Science at Terling Place	33
Donald L. Opitz
4 The Mystery of the Nobel Laureate and His Vanishing Wife	57
Joy Harvey

Part II Negotiating Academization

5 Married for Science, Divorced for Love: Success and Failure in the Collaboration Between Astrid Cleve and Hans von Euler-Chelpin	81
Kristina Espmark and Christer Nordlund
6 Ida and Walter Noddack Through Better and Worse: An Arbeitsgemeinschaft in Chemistry	103
Brigitte Van Tiggelen and Annette Lykknes

7 A Model Collaborative Couple in Genetics: Anna Rachel Whiting and Phineas Westcott Whiting’s Study of Sex Determination in Habrobracon	149
Marsha L. Richmond

Part III Radicalizing Co-operation

8 Social Reform Collaborations and Gendered Academization: Three Swedish Social Science Couples at the Turn of the Twentieth Century	193
Per Wisselgren
9 Social Science Couples in Britain at the Turn of the Twentieth Century: Gender Divisions in Work and Marriage	221
Eileen Janes Yeo
10 Co-operative Comradeships Versus Same-Sex Partnerships: Historicizing Collaboration Among Homosexual Couples in the Sciences	245
Donald L. Opitz
Epilogue: Collaborative Couples – Past, Present and Future	271
Contributor Biographies	297
Select Bibliography	301
Index	305