Contents

List of Figures ix
Acknowledgments xi

Introduction: Re-cognising the Body-Mind in Shakespeare's Theatre 1
LAURIE JOHNSON, JOHN SUTTON, AND EVELYN TRIBBLE

1 Proteus Agonistes: Shakespeare, Bacon, and the “Torture” of Nature 13
DAVID HAWKES

2 Plays, Playing, and Make-Believe: Thinking and Feeling in Shakespearean Drama 27
ROS KING

3 Warmth and Affection in 1 Henry IV: Why No One Likes Prince Hal 47
EMMA FIRESTONE

[...FIRST LINK...] Subjectivity and the Mind-Body: Extending the Self on the Renaissance Stage 67
GARRETT A. SULLIVAN, JR.

4 “Some Fury Pricks Me On”: Satanic Thinking in Thomas Heywood's A Woman Killed with Kindness 71
MARY FLOYD-WILSON
Contents

5 Mental Bodies in Much Ado About Nothing 86
JAMES A. KNAPP

[...] SECOND LINK [...]
The Unbearable Permeability of Bodies and Minds 105
MICHAEL SCHOENFELDT

6 “Make Me Not Sighted Like the Basilisk”: Vision and Contagion in The Winter’s Tale 111
DARRYL CHALK

7 Singularity in The Winter’s Tale 133
HARDIN AASAND

[...] THIRD LINK [...]
Seeing the Spider: Cognitive Ecologies in The Winter’s Tale 149
GAIL KERN PASTER

8 “There’s Magic in The Web of It”: Skin, Mind, and Webs of Touch in Othello 154
JENNIFER RAE MCDERMOTT

9 Coriolanus’s Blush 173
TIFFANY HOFFMAN

[...] FOURTH LINK [...]
The Play of Time in Cognition 191
KATHERINE ROWE

10 Altered States: Hamlet and Early Modern Head Trauma 195
LIANNE HABINEK

11 Cogito Ergo Theatrum: Redistributing Cognition on the Early Modern Stage 216
LAURIE JOHNSON
12 The Belly-Mind Relationship in Early Modern Culture: Digestion, Ventriloquism, and the Second Brain 235
JAN PURNIS

Afterword 253
DAVID HILLMAN AND CARLA MAZZIO

Contributors 257
Index 263