

Contents

List of Figures	ix
Preface	xi
1 The Doctrine of the Given	1
The Myth of the Given,	1
The Given and Theories of Perception,	14
2 Varieties, Modes, and Degrees of Givenness	29
Describing the Given,	29
Sensory Consciousness,	30
Imagination,	31
Attention and Recognition,	35
3 The Challenge of Gestalt Psychology	41
Duck/Rabbits,	42
Amodal Perception,	52
The Tilted Coin,	58
Penrose/Escher Figures,	66
The Given as Impossible—Other Cases,	69
Sensory Awareness of Relations,	80
Conclusion,	83
4 The Conceptual Content of the Given	89
The Myth of the Conceptual Nakedness of the Given,	89
Theoretical Concepts and the Given,	103
Recent Defenses of the Non-Conceptuality of Perceptual Experience,	109

5	Perceptual Belief	115
	Does the Given Have Propositional Content?, 115
	Sellars's Dilemma, 122
	Language and the Given, 125
6	The Given and Knowledge	137
	The Given as Evidence, 137
	Givenness and Infallibility: The Role of Direct Acquaintance, 143
	BonJour's Challenge to Foundationalism, 150
	Justification of A Priori Knowledge Claims, 155
	Empirical Knowledge, 166
	Uncertain Foundations: Their Role in Justification, 173
7	Concluding Unmetaphysical Postscript	191
	Some Old Problems, 191
	The Discontent of the Qualia, 195
	Classical Foundationalism: Death and Resurrection, 209
	Bibliography	215
	Index	221
	About the Author	227