Contents

List of Figures
List of Figures vii

Acknowledgements
Acknowledgements viii

Notes on Contributors
Notes on Contributors ix

Introduction
Introduction 1

Jane Goodall and Christopher Lee

Part I Overviews

1. ‘But Why Should You People at Home Not Know?:’
   Sacrifice as a Social Fact in the Public Memory of War
   Christopher Lee
   21

2. Trauma, Dispossession and Narrative Truth: ‘Seeds of the Nation’ of South Sudan
   Wendy Richards
   37

3. Trauma and the Stoic Foundations of Sympathy
   Jane Goodall
   52

4. Unremembered: Memorial, Sentimentality, Dislocation
   Laurie Johnson
   70

Part II Interviews

5. Interview with Ross Anderson, Clinical Psychologist
   87

6. Interview with Therese Lee, Specialist in Emergency and Retrieval Nursing 94

7. Interview with Norman Fry, Disaster Co-ordinator for the Toowoomba Regional Council at the Time of the 2011 Floods
   103

8. Interview with Councillor Tanya Milligan, Chair of Human and Social Response Committee Following the Lockyer Valley Floods in South East Queensland, and Sue Hewitt, Senior Recovery Officer
   109

Trauma and public memory
2014
9  Interview with Mark Willacy, Foreign Correspondent with the Australian Broadcasting Corporation 115

Part III Reflections

10  Unburied Trauma and the Exhumation of History: An American Genealogy 131
    Lindsay Tuggle

11  The Atrocity Tour 147
    Lindsay Barrett

12  Regaining Lost Humanity: Dealing with Trauma in Exile 163
    Robert Mason and Geoffrey Parkes

13  Popular Entertainments as Survival Strategies in Prisoner-of-War Camps During World War II 174
    Victor Emeljanow

14  A Soldier's Perspective on Serving in Iraq and Afghanistan 193
    Richard Gehrmann

Conclusion 207

Works Cited 211

Index 225