

Contents

List of illustrations	page vii
Notes on contributors	viii
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction
David Loewenstein and Michael Witmore	I
PART I REVISITING RELIGIOUS CONTEXTS IN SHAKESPEARE'S ENGLAND
2I
1 The debate about Shakespeare and religion	23
David Bevington
2 Choosing sides and talking religion in Shakespeare's England	40
Peter Marshall
3 Experiencing religion in London: diversity and choice in Shakespeare's metropolis	57
Felicity Heal
PART II REPRESENTING RELIGIOUS BELIEFS AND DIVERSITY IN THE PLAYS
79
4 Delusion in A Midsummer Night's Dream	8I
Alison Shell
5 The siege of Jerusalem and subversive rhetoric in King John	96
Beatrice Groves
6 Shakespeare's Julius Caesar and the search for a usable (Christian?) past	III
Peter Lake

7	Lucretius, Calvin, and natural law in Measure for Measure Adrian Streete	131
8	Agnostic Shakespeare?: the godless world of King Lear David Loewenstein	155
9	"Another Golgotha" Ewan Fernie	172
10	Shakespeare and wisdom literature Michael Witmore	191
11	Awakening faith in The Winter's Tale Richard McCoy	214
12	Hamlet, Henry VIII , and the question of religion: a post-secular perspective Paul Stevens	231
13	Converting Henry: truth, history, and historical faith in Henry VIII Michael Davies	258
14	Shakespeare's non-Christian religions Matthew Dimmock	280
	Afterword Brian Cummings	300
	Index	305