

TABLE OF CONTENTS

List of abbreviations.....	x
Acknowledgements.....	xii
Summary	xv
1. Introduction.....	1
1.1. Early days in business and human rights.....	1
1.2. The origins of human rights impact assessment.....	2
1.3. HRIA in concept	3
1.3.1. Core values.....	3
1.3.2. Human rights as defined in HRIA	3
1.3.3. Interdisciplinarity and process.....	4
1.3.4. Collaborative framework.....	4
1.4. Structure of this dissertation.....	5
2. Methodology: assessing human rights impacts in corporate development projects..	1
2.1. Abstract	2
2.2. Introduction.....	3
2.3. Developing assessment methods.....	4
2.3.1. Human rights	4
2.3.2. Phases of assessment	6
2.3.3. Rightsholder and stakeholder engagement	8
2.3.4. Ratings.....	10
2.3.5. Verification and measurement	13
2.4. Case studies.....	14
2.4.1. Green Resources' Uchindile eucalyptus and pine plantation, Tanzania ..	14
2.4.2. Paladin Kayelekera uranium mine, Malawi	18
2.4.3. Synthesis of case studies	20
2.5. Discussion	21
2.5.1. Cataloguing and analysis.....	22
2.6. Ratings.....	23
2.6.1. Feedback.....	23
2.6.2. Monitoring and surveillance.....	24
3. The Roots of HRIA: lessons from health impact assessment	27
3.1. Abstract	28
3.2. Introduction.....	29
3.2.1. HIA as a stepping stone	30
3.3. Experience and lessons from a case study in Tanzania.....	33
3.3.1. Project selection	33
3.4. Approach to evaluation	33
3.5. Human rights impacts	37
3.6. Recommendations.....	39
3.7. First monitoring and mitigation	39
3.8. Second monitoring and mitigation.....	40
3.9. Discussion.....	42
Acknowledgements.....	43

4.	Surveillance response: human rights impacts in changeable contexts	45
4.1.	Abstract	46
4.2.	Introduction	47
4.3.	Challenges in longitudinal impact assessment	47
4.4.	Capturing context	49
4.5.	Experiences from Kayelekera uranium mine	53
4.5.1.	Initial assessment: impacts in a rural setting	53
4.6.	Assessing impact over time to facilitate change	57
4.6.1.	Contextual human rights conditions	58
4.6.2.	Project interventions to mitigate or remediate human rights impacts ..	58
4.6.3.	Project inaction towards human rights impacts	60
4.6.4.	Validation of human rights impact assessment processes	60
4.7.	Context driving change	61
4.7.1.	Contextual human rights conditions	61
4.7.2.	Project interventions to mitigate or remediate human rights impacts ..	62
4.7.3.	Project inattention to human rights impact	63
4.8.	Lessons learned	64
4.9.	Discussion	66
5.	Multinational corporations and infectious disease: embracing human rights management techniques	71
5.1.	Abstract	72
5.2.	Background	73
5.3.	Infectious diseases and human rights	74
5.3.1.	A governance framework	74
5.3.2.	An analytical framework	76
5.4.	Methods	78
5.4.1.	Past efforts and present duties: MNCs as duty bearers	78
5.4.2.	Past efforts: the business case	79
5.4.3.	Present duties: the human rights and social responsibility case	82
5.5.	Discussion: implications on the ground	85
5.5.1.	Limitations of a human rights framework without enforcement capabilities	85
5.5.2.	Blending corporate “do no harm” with state “duty to protect”: the state role in the Guiding Principles	86
5.5.3.	A role for international organisations within the Guiding Principles	88
5.6.	Conclusion	89
	Competing interests	91
	Acknowledgements	92
6.	State of play: corporate human rights commitments and the psychology of business acceptance of human rights duties	93
6.1.	Abstract	94
6.2.	Background: human rights and business	95
6.3.	The UN Guiding Principles	96
6.3.1.	Public commitment to the duty to respect	97
6.3.2.	Due diligence	98
6.3.3.	Access to remedy	99
6.4.	Challenges in evaluating human rights commitments	100

6.4.1.	Categories of commitment	101
6.4.2.	Benchmarks	102
6.5.	Methodology	103
6.5.1.	Data	103
6.5.2.	Scoring individual companies	104
6.5.3.	Verification and validation	105
6.6.	Data analysis	106
6.6.1.	Raw scores for industries and regions	106
6.6.2.	Statistical analysis	108
6.7.	Results	109
6.8.	Discussion	111
6.8.1.	A reputational impetus for uptake	111
6.8.2.	Regional mentalities and the strength of the commonwealth	112
6.8.3.	The role of industry	112
6.9.	Policy implications	113
6.9.1.	Governments must lead the way	113
6.9.2.	Consumers are not driving corporate change	114
6.9.3.	An opportunity for industry associations	115
6.10.	Conclusion	116
7.	Discussion: strategic advances and lessons learned	117
7.1.	Introduction	117
7.1.1.	History and existing case studies	118
7.2.	Compiling existing, public HRIA	119
7.3.	Areas of convergence in HRIA practice	124
7.4.	Areas of divergence in HRIA practice	127
7.5.	Challenges in proving the added value of HRIA	130
7.6.	Looking forward: involving governments	131
	Competing interests	132
	Acknowledgements	132
8.	Conclusion	133
9.	References	137
10.	Curriculum Vitae	153