

Contents

Citation Information	vii
Notes on Contributors	xi
Introduction	xiv
Part I: Identities
1. Directions in Music Fan Research: Undiscovered Territories and Hard Problems Mark Duffett	1
2. A Long Strange Trip: The Continuing World of European Deadheads Peter Smith and Ian Inglis	7
3. “Anyone who Calls Muse a Twilight Band will be Shot on Sight”: Music, Distinction, and the “Interloping Fan” in the Twilight Franchise Rebecca Williams	29
4. Diva Worship and the Sonic Search for Queer Utopia Craig Jennex	45
5. Making Monsters: Lady Gaga, Fan Identification, and Social Media Melissa A. Click, Hyunji Lee and Holly Willson Holladay	62
6. “His Soul Was Wandering and Holy”: Employing and Contesting Religious Terminology in Django Fandom Siv B. Lie	82
7. My Music, Not Yours: Ravings of a Rock-and-Roll Fanatic B. Lee Cooper	99
Part II: Fan Practices
8. Fan Practices Mark Duffett	113

CONTENTS

9. Autechre and Electronic Music Fandom: Performing Knowledge Online through Techno-Geek Discourses Thomas Brett	119
10. New Economy of Fandom Patryk Galuszka	137
11. “Bandom Ate My Face”: The Collapse of the Fourth Wall in Online Fan Fiction Ross Hagen	156
12. Filming Concerts for YouTube: Seeking Recognition in the Pursuit of Cultural Capital Steven Colburn	171
13. Penfriendships, Exchange Economies, and “FBs”: Take That Fans Networking before the Digital Revolution Anja Löbert	185
14. Smells Like Focus Group Spirit? The Changing Nature of Pop Fandom and its Deployment as a Political Tool Rupa Huq	207
Conclusion: Beyond “Obsessive” Collectors and “Screaming” Girls	213
Index	221