

CONTENTS

Introduction	page vij
I. The End of Government; viz. the Good or Benefit for the Sake of which it exists	I
II. The Means of attaining the End of Government; viz. Power, and Securities against the Abuse of that Power	6
III. That the requisite Securities against the Abuse of Power, are not found in any of the simple Forms of Government	8
IV. An Objection stated—and answered	14
V. That the requisite Securities are not found in a Union of the Three simple Forms of Government;—Doctrine of the Constitutional Balance	26
VI. In the Representative System alone the Securities for good Government are to be found	33
VII. What is required in a Representative Body to make it a Security for good Government?	35
VIII. What is required in the Elective Body to secure the requisite Properties in the Representative Body	43
IX. I. Objection: That a perfect Representative System, if established, would destroy the Monarchy, and the House of Lords	60
X. II. Objection: That the People are not capable of acting agreeably to their Interest	63