

Contents

Notes on contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	xii
Introduction	1
Andrew Smith and Anna Barton
Part I: Critical reflections	13
1 On measuring the nineteenth century	15
John Schad
2 Literature and science	33
David Amigoni
3 Locke in pentameters: Victorian poetry after (or before) posthumousness	53
Anna Barton
4 Reading the Gothic and Gothic readers	72
Andrew Smith
Part II: Rethinking national contexts and exchanges	89
5 The global circulation of Victorian actants and ideas: liberalism and liberalisation in the niche of nature, culture, and technology	91
Regenia Gagnier
6 Literary folk: writing popular culture in colonial Punjab, 1885–1905	111
Churnjeet Mahn

7	'Across the waters of this disputed ocean': the material production of American literature in nineteenth-century Britain	129
	Katie McGettigan
8	Gruesome models: European displays of natural history and anatomy and nineteenth-century literature	149
	Laurence Talairach-Vielmas
Part III: Afterlives		167
9	Adaptive/appropriative reuse in neo-Victorian fiction: having one's cake and eating it too	169
	Marie-Luise Koblke
10	Populism and ideology: nineteenth-century fiction and the cinema	188
	Richard J. Hand
11	True histories of the Elephant Man: storytelling and theatricality in adaptations of the life of Joseph Merrick	207
	Benjamin Poore
	Index	225