

CONTENTS

| | | |
|---------------------------------|--|-----------|
| 1 | Introduction: Breathing in Airless Spaces | 1 |
| | Elizabeth J. Donaldson | |
| Part I Mad Community | | |
| 2 | Coming Out Mad, Coming Out Disabled | 11 |
| | Elizabeth Brewer | |
| 3 | Going Barefoot: Mad Affiliation, Identity Politics, and Eros | 31 |
| | PhebeAnn M. Wolframe | |
| 4 | “Hundreds of People Like Me”: A Search for a Mad Community in The Bell Jar | 51 |
| | Rose Miyatsu | |
| 5 | Writing Madness in Indigenous Literature: A Hesitation | 71 |
| | Erin Soros | |

Part II Mad History

- 6 "Is the Young Lady Mad?": Psychiatric Disability in
Louisa May Alcott's Fiction 91
Karyn Valerius
- 7 The Snake Pit: Mary Jane Ward's Asylum Fiction and Mental Health Advocacy 109
Elizabeth J. Donaldson
- 8 Alcoholic, Mad, Disabled: Constructing Lesbian Identity
in Ann Bannon's "The Beebo Brinker Chronicles" 127
Tatiana Prorokova
- 9 Seeing Words, Hearing Voices: Hannah Weiner, Dora
García, and the Poetic Performance of Radical Dis/
Humanism 145
Andrew McEwan

Part III Mad Survival

- 10 "My Difference Is Not My [Mental] Sickness": Ethnicity and Erasure in Joanne Greenberg's Jewish American Life Writing 165
Gail Berkeley Sherman
- 11 Resistance, Suffering, and Psychiatric Disability in Jerry
Pinto's Em and the Big Hoom and Amandeep Sandhu's
Sepia Leaves 183
Srikanth Mallavarapu
- 12 Mental Disability and Social Value in Michelle Cliff's Abeng 199
Drew Holladay
- 13 It Doesn't Add Up: Mental Illness in Paul
Hornschemeier's Mother, Come Home 215
Jessica Gross

- Index 235