

Table of contents

Introduction

Multilingualism and foreign language education: A synthesis of linguistic and educational findings Andreas Bonnet and Peter Siemund	1
--	---

Part I. Policy perspectives: Concepts of multilingual education

Language education in and for a multilingual Europe Michael Byram	33
Multilingualism and education in sub-Saharan Africa: Policies, practices and implications Feliciano Chimbutane	57
Language policy, language study, and heritage language education in the U.S. Kendall A. King, Mengying Liu and María Cecilia Schwedhelm	77
Globalization, national identity, and multiculturalism and multilingualism: Language policy and practice in education in Asian countries Wenyang Sun and Xue Lan Rong	99

Part II. Theoretical perspectives: From multilingualism to plurilingualism

L3, the tertiary language Björn Hammarberg	127
Plurilingual identities: On the way to an integrative view on language education? Adelheid Hu	151
Models of multilingual competence Britta Hufeisen	173
The multilingual turn in foreign language education: Facts and fallacies Sílvia Melo-Pfeifer	191

Linguistic landscaping Sebastian Muth	213
Identity and investment in multilingual classrooms Bonny Norton	237
 Part III. Empirical perspectives: Multilingualism in the foreign language classroom
The acquisition of English as an L3 from a sociocultural point of view: The perspective of multilingual learners Andreas Bonnet, Larissa Jacob, Annika Schäfer and Torben Schmidt	255
Affordances of multilingual learning situations: Possibilities and constraints for foreign language classrooms Judith Buendgens-Kosten and Daniela Elsner	281
L1 effects in the early L3 acquisition of vocabulary and grammar Holger Hopp, Teresa Kieseier, Markus Vogelbacher and Dieter Thoma	305
“One day a father and his son going fishing on the Lake”: A study on the use of the progressive aspect of monolingual and bilingual learners of English Eliane Lorenz	331
English as a lingua franca at the multilingual university: A comparison of monolingually and multilingually raised students and instructors Jessica Terese Mueller	359
Learning English demonstrative pronouns on bilingual substrate: Evidence from German heritage speakers of Russian, Turkish, and Vietnamese Peter Siemund, Stefanie Schröter and Sharareh Rahbari	381
Contributors	407
Subject index	419