

Contents

1	Starting the Journey: Introducing the Study, Youth, and Their Stories	1
2	Understanding Languages and Literacies of Immigrant-Origin Multilingual Youth: Insights from Theory and Research	23
3	Developing Understandings Over Time and Across Contexts	47
4	“To Make Something of Myself”: Interactional Histories in the Context of Remedial Institutional Practices and Immigration Policies	75
5	“It’s Going to Take a While for This Country to Get Used to Us”: School and Vocational Interactional Histories in the Context of Immigration Policies	117

6	From “An Inspiration” to Not Knowing “The Basics”: Tensions Between Classroom Interactional Histories and Institutional Expectations	153
7	Becoming a “Mexican Feminist”: Disciplinary Becoming Through Interactional Histories Across Communities and Contexts	189
8	Using Informal Bilingual Resources, “Jumping” and “Giving Double”: Interactional Histories Across School and Religious Communities	229
9	Building Equitable Futures for Immigrant-Origin Multilingual Youth: Conclusions and Implications of Longitudinal Interactional Histories	261
	Methodological Appendix	287
	References	305
	Index	307