

Contents

Notes on contributors	ix
Foreword	xiv
KATJA FRANKO
Acknowledgements	xv
PART I
Introduction	1
1 Big data: what is it and why does it matter for crime and social control?	3
ALEŠ ZAVRŠNIK
PART II
Automated social control	29
2 Paradoxes of privacy in an era of asymmetrical social control	31
FRANK PASQUALE
3 Big data – big ignorance	58
RENATA SALECL
4 Machines, humans and the question of control	75
ZORAN KANDUĆ

viii Contents

PART III
Automated policing	91
5 Data collection without limits: automated policing and the politics of framelessness	93
MARK ANDREJEVIC
6 Algorithmic patrol: the futures of predictive policing	108
DEAN WILSON
PART IV
Automated justice	129
7 Algorithmic crime control	131
ALEŠ ZAVRŠNIK
8 Subjectivity, algorithms and the courtroom	154
MOJCA M. PLESNIČAR AND KATJA ŠUGMAN STUBBS
PART V
Big data automation limitations	177
9 Judicial oversight of the (mass) collection and processing of personal data	179
PRIMOŽ GORKIČ
10 Big data and economic cyber espionage: an international law perspective	197
MARUŠA T. VEBER AND MAŠA KOVIČ DINE
Index	221