

Contents

Acknowledgements	VII
List of Maps and Figures	VIII
Notes	IX

1 Introduction	1
1 Central Questions	4
2 History and Anthropology, Some Methodological Implications	6
3 Locating the Field Site and Choosing a Name for It	13
4 A Brief Historical Outline	21
5 Ethnicity, Natsional'nost', and Nationality: Definitions and Translations	26
6 Chapter Structure	29
2 Administering the Periphery from Horseback	32
1 The State's Hunger for Tax and Men	33
2 Colonists out of the State's Sight	39
3 Keep It Separate, Keep It Simple	44
4 Bureaucracy Evolving: the Church Gives Way to the State	53
5 The Categories of the Census Taker and the Ethnographer	56
6 Ethnicity in Revolutionary Minds	68
3 Persuasion and Paranoia—Romania's Rule in Bessarabia 1918–44	71
1 Newcomer Elites in a Hostile Land	74
2 Spying on Minorities	77
3 Counting and Categorizing Minorities	80
4 Ethnicity as a Proxy for Trustworthiness	86
5 Bringing the Past into Line	97
6 Eugenics and Ethnic Cleansing	99
4 Politically Desirable Theory and Its Way into Folk Theory	105
1 The Imperial Roots of Diverging Ethnicity Concepts	109
2 Self-Identification vs. Ascription—Who Gets to Draw Ethnic Boundaries?	115
3 State-Approved Concepts of Ethnicity in Post-War Soviet Academia	117
4 Gut Feeling and Folk Theories of Ethnicity	123
5 Grand Scheme Planning and the "Primordial Trap"	129

5	Ethnic Minorities and Soviet Newcomers	134
1	Ethnicity and the Hierarchy of Trust in Post-War Southern Bessarabia	135
2	The Stewards of a New Model State	140
3	Ethnicity Performed in Public	143
4	Soviet Education and the Friendship of Peoples	150
5	Stagnation and Revived Ethnic Consciousness	158
6	Post-Soviet Instability, Clientelism and the Persistence of Ethnic Boundaries	166
1	The Power of Benefaction	170
2	The Roots of Clientelism in Ethnic and Non-Ethnic Networks	179
3	Ethnicity in Local Politics: Three Strategies	183
4	Political Representation and the Pressure to Choose a Clear-Cut Ethnic Identity	188
5	When Clear-Cut Boundaries Encounter Fuzzy Identities	193
7	The Narratives and Techniques that Maintain Ethnic Boundaries	198
1	Pure and Impure Language	199
2	Religion's Ambiguous Role in Marking Ethnicity	205
3	Common Historical Experience and Collective Memory	210
4	Processed Folklore	216
5	Genetic Narratives of Ethnic Belonging	221
6	Generalizing the Inside, Omitting the Outside	226
8	Conclusion—Delimiting Ethnic Groups as a Tool of Statecraft	232
1	The Significance of Ethnicity: Continuities and Ruptures	232
2	When Ethnic Boundaries Become Obstacles	235
3	Ethnic Boundaries, Whom Do They Serve?	239
4	Narratives and Techniques	241
5	The Trouble with Fuzzy Boundaries	245
6	Ethnicity as a Beacon of Stability	247
	References	253
	Bibliography	259
	Index of Authors	274
	Index of Subjects and Names	275