

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Now hear this (A preface)	xiii

PART ONE Theatrical hearing

1	It's obviously an effect (An introduction)	3
	Splat	3
	By design	15
2	Dispositions	23
	The god sound	23
	Auditory space and its dramaturgy	34
	The scenography of sound	38
3	Auditorium	47
	A space in process	47
	A fictional ontology	60

PART TWO Reconfigurations

4	Present (A theatre about our person)	67
	Inscape	67
	Personal audio/immersive theatre	72
	The hi-fi cell	74
5	A sound from the suburbs (The curious story of Colonel Gouraud)	83
	An electric house	85
	A baby cries	87
	Anathema maranatha!	88

6 Picturing the scene 93

The scenic reconfiguration 93

The picturesque of sound 101

The Eidophusikon 110PART THREE 'Our thunder is the best'
(Living in the audio world)7 Arty, exotic and gothic 119

Pop, art and the theatre of hearing 119

The theatre we daydream 125

Thunder on the ear 134

8 Inside out (Symbolism, cinema and The Bells) 143

The soundtrack, its prehistory and audiovisual morphology 143

My God, it's coming out of your ears! 150

The free ear 158

9 Audio drama 165

The sound effect in its widest sense (the stuff of radio) 165

The theatre Corwin heard 173

Common sound 182

The Anatomy of Sound, by Norman Corwin 18310 Conclusion 191

Audimus: the theatre we hear 191

References 199

Index 207