

Table of Contents

List of Figures	x
List of Tables	xi
List of Boxes	xii
Preface to the Second Edition	xiii
1 Introduction: Analyzing Foreign Policy	1
Chapter overview	1
Introduction	1
What is foreign policy analysis?	2
Defining what foreign policy is	3
The assumptions and core arguments of the theoretical tools	6
Realism: The dog-eat-dog world of power politics	6
Liberalism: Cooperation and conflict among self-interested rational actors	8
Social constructivism: A constructed international system	10
Decision-making theories	12
Conclusions: A theoretical toolbox for the study of foreign policy	14
Summary	16
2 Research Questions and the Use of Theory	17
Chapter overview	17
Introduction	17
Choosing foreign policy research questions	18
Event-focused research	19
Theory-focused questions	19
What is theory?	20
Theory-focused research focus and theories as explanatory tools	22
The heuristic use of theories and accounting for particular historical outcomes	24
Considerations when choosing theories	27
What are good foreign policy-related research questions?	28
Puzzles	29
Contributing to a debate	29
Real-world relevance, or does it matter?	31
Conclusions	33
Summary	34
3 Choosing an Appropriate Research Strategy	35
Chapter overview	35
Introduction	35
Variance-based approaches to studying foreign policy	36

Variance-based research using non-experimental (aka observational) data	39
Variance-based research tends to be large-n	41
The research process in variance-based approaches	42
Defining concepts and theoretical relationships in variance-based approaches	42
Measuring concepts and relationships in variance-based research	44
Designing variance-based research	46
Case-based approaches to studying foreign policy	48
The research process in case-based approaches	50
Conceptualization in case-based approaches	50
Operationalization of concepts and claims in case-based approaches	54
Designing case-based research	57
Interpretivist approaches	60
Conceptualization and operationalization in interpretive research	61
Designing interpretive research	62
Discourse analysis	63
Ethnographic field research	63
Parsimony versus explanatory richness in different approaches	64
Conclusions	66
Summary	66
4 System-Level Factors	69
Chapter overview	69
Introduction	69
Structural realism: The survival of egoistic states in an anarchic world	72
The distribution of power capabilities in the international system	73
What type of behavior does the anarchical international system produce?	77
Defensive structural realism	78
Offensive structural realism: Maximizing state power	79
Using structural realism to analyze state foreign policy goals	83
Liberalism: Institutions and interdependence create a new context for states	85
Interdependence and state foreign policy interests	85
International institutions and state foreign policy interests	91
Using systems-level liberalism to analyze state foreign policy goals	95
Constructivism: Different cultures of anarchy, national interests and identity	96
Conclusions	101
Summary	101
5 Domestic Factors	103
Chapter overview	103
Introduction	103
Neoclassical realism: Anarchy with a domestic face	105
Conclusions: Using neoclassical realism to analyze state foreign policy goals	111
Liberalism: Opening up the black box	112
Weak liberal theories at the state level	112
Public opinion	112
The impact of the media: Framing effects	114
	119

Interest groups	120
Domestic political institutions: Government and levels of executive constraints	123
Strong liberalism at the state level: The transformation of state interests and identities	128
Neofunctionalism and the impact of international institutions	129
Conclusions: Using state-level liberal theories to study foreign policy	134
Social constructivism at the state level: Interest and identity construction	134
Conventional constructivism: Discourses of identity	135
Poststructuralism: The politics of identity and securitization theory	137
Using state-level constructivist theory to analyze state foreign policy goals	139
Conclusions	140
Summary	140
6 Understandings of the Choice Situation	141
Chapter overview	141
Introduction	141
The rational actor model (RAM)	144
Cognitive theories	147
The content of decision-maker beliefs: The 'operational codes' of leaders	149
Patterns of perception and misperception	156
The role of crisis	159
The role of emotions in foreign policy	161
Conclusions	162
Summary	163
7 Making Foreign Policy Decisions	165
Chapter overview	165
Introduction	165
Cognitive and social-psychological theories of decision-making	167
Poliheuristic theory	167
Prospect theory: Different evaluations of gains and losses	171
Groupthink and polythink	173
Polythink	179
The politics of choice – foreign policy decisions as the product of political battles	184
Coalitions and foreign policy decision-making	185
Political institutions: Bureaucratic and governmental politics	187
The implementation of foreign policy: How organizations matter	193
Social constructivism: Different logics of action	198
Conclusions	202
Summary	202
8 What States Do: Security Policies	203
Chapter overview	203
Introduction	203
War and security foreign policies	204

War due to anarchy	205
Wars due to shifts in relative power	208
War due to balancing	208
Expected utility of war	209
Diversionary wars	211
Why states prefer certain military options over others: The role of strategic culture	212
Preventing wars	215
Creating stable balances of power	215
Deterrence and coercive diplomacy	218
Humanitarian interventions	219
Preventing war: Liberal theories of the importance of mutual democracy and economic interdependence	221
Preventing war: Women leaders and gender differences in the use of force?	225
Conflict resolution and the termination of international conflicts	227
Conclusions	228
Summary	229
9 What States Do: Diplomacy	231
Chapter overview	231
Introduction	231
Negotiations as a form of diplomacy	232
Two-level games	239
Negotiations and culture	241
Conclusions	242
Summary	243
10 What States Do: Economic Foreign Policies	245
Chapter overview	245
Introduction	245
Trade policies	246
Economic realists	247
Liberal free trade theories	248
Marxist theories	248
Economic sanctions and aid: The sticks and carrots of economic statecraft	255
Foreign developmental aid	257
Conclusions	258
Summary	259
11 A Transformation of State Foreign Policy-Making?	261
Chapter overview	261
Introduction	261
Globalization and the end of the state-centric world?	262
Globalization and security policies: New threats?	263
Globalization and diplomacy: A new global polity?	267

Globalization and economic foreign policies: The retreat of the state?	268
The impact of globalization: Much ado about nothing?	270
Foreign policy-making beyond the state?	270
Is the EU an independent actor in foreign affairs?	271
Conclusions	274
Summary	274
 References	 275
Index	295