

Table of contents

CHAPTER 1

- Connecting traditional and new genres: Trends and emerging themes 1
María-José Luzón and Carmen Pérez-Llantada

CHAPTER 2

- At the frontlines of the online scientific article 19
Joseph E. Harmon

CHAPTER 3

- The case of the scientific research article and lessons concerning genre change online 41
Ashley Rose Mehlenbacher and Brad Mehlenbacher

CHAPTER 4

- The graphical abstract as a new genre in the promotion of science 59
Graciela Rabuske Hendges and Cristiane Salete Florek

CHAPTER 5

- Scholarly soundbites: Audiovisual innovations in digital science and their implications for genre evolution 81
Elizabeth Rowley-Jolivet and Shirley Carter-Thomas

CHAPTER 6

- Continuity and change: Negotiating relationships in traditional and online peer review genres 107
Ruth Breeze

CHAPTER 7

The multimodal bridge between academics and practitioners in the Harvard Business Review's digital context: A multi-levelled qualitative analysis of knowledge construction

131

Carmen Daniela Maier and Jan Engberg

CHAPTER 8

The role of genre hybridity and hypermodality in digital knowledge dissemination: The case of the IEEE Spectrum

153

Ivana Mirović, Vesna Bogdanović and Vesna Bulatović

CHAPTER 9

#Vaccineswork: Recontextualizing the content of epidemiology reports on Twitter

173

Deborah Orpin

CHAPTER 10

The representation of science and technology in genres of Vatican discourse: Pope Francis's encyclical Laudato Si' as a case study

195

Graham Smart and Matthew Falconer

CHAPTER 11

Public- and expert-facing communication: A case study of polycontextuality and context collapse in Internet-mediated citizen science

219

Gwendolynne Reid and Chris M. Anson

Index

239