

---

Contents

---

|                                                                                                                              |      |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| List of figures                                                                                                       | vii  |
| List of contributors                                                                                                  | viii |
| Acknowledgements                                                                                                      | xii  |
| 1 Introduction to the Handbook of Critical International RelationsSteven C. Roach                          | 1    |
| PART I APPROACHES AND EMANCIPATION                                                                                           |      |
| 2 Opening up international relations, or: how I learned to stopworrying and love 'non-Western IR'Pinar Bilgin | 12   |
| 3 Habermas and international relations: testing the critical limitsof modernityBen Thirkell-White             | 29   |
| 4 Emancipation, power, insecurity: Critical Theory and immanentcritique of human securityColumba Peoples      | 55   |
| 5 A critical perspective on emotions in international relationsSimon Koschut                                      | 72   |
| 6 Critical realism in international relationsBen Luongo                                                           | 90   |
| PART II CONCEPTS AND CONFIGURATION                                                                                           |      |
| 7 Dialectics in critical international relations theoryShannon Brincat and Susan de Groot Heupner                 | 122  |
| 8 Recognition reframed: reconfiguring recognition in global politicsKate Schick                                   | 144  |
| 9 Empires at home: critical international relations theory and ourpostcolonial momentsAlexander D. Barder     | 162  |
| 10 Instrumental reasonMatthew Fluck                                                                               | 179  |

PART III POLITICAL ECONOMY AND DOMINATION

|    |                                                                                                                                                        |     |
|----|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 11 | Critical international relations and the global organic crisisStephen Gill                                                                  | 202 |
| 12 | Neoliberal authoritarianism in Egypt before and after theuprisings: a critical international political economy perspectiveRoberto Roccu | 221 |
| 13 | Emancipation in critical security studies: political economy,domination and the everydayJoão Nunes                                      | 242 |
| 14 | Slow violence, precarity and the overheating of neoliberal consensusShomik Chakrabarti                                                      | 259 |

PART IV GLOBAL TRANSFORMATIONS AND CHALLENGES

|    |                                                                                                                      |     |
|----|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 15 | Critical animal studies, critical international relations theory,and anthropocentrismSteven C. Tauber | 277 |
| 16 | The politics of emotions in contemporary warsMathias Delori                                               | 305 |
| 17 | Critical international relations feminism: the case of AmericanShia womenRaheleh Dayerizadeh          | 324 |
| 18 | The responsibility to protect: the rise of liberal authoritarianismPhilip Cunliffe                        | 337 |
| 19 | AfterwordSteven C. Roach                                                                                  | 348 |
|    | Index                                                                                                         | 354 |