

Contents

|   |           |
|---|-----------|
| List of Figures  | vii       |
| List of Editors and Contributors   | ix        |
| Acknowledgments  | xiii      |
|   |           |
| Introduction   | 1  |
| CAMILLA CAPORICCI AND ARMELLE SABATIER  |           |
|   |           |
| PART I   |           |
| To Look or Not to Look at Pictures?  | 17 |
|   |           |
| 1 An Edifying Pictura Loquens: Alberico Gentili's    Commentatio and His Defense of Drama in    Elizabethan Oxford | 19 |
| CRISTIANO RAGNI   |           |
|   |           |
| 2 Looking At and Through Pictures in Donne's Lyrics  | 33 |
| JAMES A. KNAPP  |           |
|   |           |
| 3 "A painted devil": The Matter and Making of Images in    Macbeth   | 50 |
| CHLOE PORTER  |           |
|   |           |
| 4 Mirrors, Pictures, Optics, Shakespeare   | 66 |
| B.J. SOKOL  |           |
|   |           |
| PART II  |           |
| Confluences: English Texts and European Paintings  | 85 |
|   |           |
| 5 Over the Edge: Shakespeare, Judith, and the Virtuous    Use of Female Indiscretion and Deception                                    | 87 |
| ROCCO CORONATO  |           |

|          |  |     |
|----------|--|-----|
| 6        | “Be her sense but as a monument”: Lost Icons and Substitutive Figures in Shakespeare’s Cymbeline                      | 101 |
|          | FIAMMETTA DIONISIO   |     |
| 7        | The Notion of Picturing in Early Modern Literature: The Case of the Miniaturist Isaac Oliver (c. 1585–1617)                  | 123 |
|          | RAPHAËLLE COSTA DE BEAUREGARD  |     |
| PART III |  |     |
|          | Portraits on the Page and the Stage  | 139 |
| 8        | “Take this picture which I heere present thee”: The Art of Portraiture in the Elizabethan Sonnet Sequences                   | 141 |
|          | CAMILLA CAPORICCI  |     |
| 9        | Narrative Portraiture  | 163 |
|          | CATHERINE BELSEY   |     |
| 10       | Picturing in Little or in Stone? Miniature versus Monument in The History of the Tryall of Chevalry (Anonymous, 1605) | 179 |
|          | ARMELLE SABATIER   |     |
| 11       | Performing Portraits: The Portrait as Prop and Its Performative Dimension in Early Modern English Drama                      | 197 |
|          | EMANUEL STELZER  |     |
| PART IV  |  |     |
|          | The Power of the Visual and the Verbal   | 213 |
| 12       | Prospero’s Rainbow: Political Miracles in The Tempest   | 215 |
|          | ROSANNA CAMERLINGO   |     |
| 13       | “Picture is the invention of heaven”: Ben Jonson and the Paradox of the Visual   | 230 |
|          | KEIR ELAM  |     |
|          | Index   | 245 |