

Contents

List of illustrations	vii
List of contributors	ix
Foreword	xii

Introduction: Why and how do we read economic history sources?	1
GEORG CHRIST AND PHILIPP R. RÖSSNER

PART 1

Toolbox	7
1 The study of economic history – Methods and sources	9
CHRIS GODDEN
2 What do we analyse – typology of sources	36
CATHERINE CASSON, GEORG CHRIST, CHRIS GODDEN, JOHN S. LEE, SARAH RODDY, PHILIPP R. RÖSSNER AND EDMOND SMITH
3 How to read economic history sources quantitatively	81
GEORG CHRIST, NUNO PALMA, EDMOND SMITH AND AASHISH VELKAR
4 How to read economic sources qualitatively – source analysis	103
GEORG CHRIST

PART 2

Case Studies	125
5 Origins of capitalism I: Transcultural trade or pepper travelling from India to England	127
GEORG CHRIST

vi Contents

6	Origins of capitalism II: Medieval urban property markets: thirteenth-century Coventry revisited	141
	CATHERINE CASSON AND MARK CASSON
7	Counting cows and coins: Monitoring the economy through port records and trade statistics in the early modern period	168
	PHILIPP R. RÖSSNER
8	Historical account books as a source for quantitative history	184
	NUNO PALMA
9	History through objects: The example of coins	198
	PHILIPP R. RÖSSNER
10	The news and numbers: A guide to using digitised newspapers	219
	SARAH RODDY
11	Monsieur le Directeur: Letters and 'ordinary' investors in modern France	235
	ALEXIA YATES
	Index	247