

CONTENTS

1	Introduction	1
1	Ecocriticism: Surveying the Field	2
2	Racialized Others: The Ones Left Out	11
	References	22
2	Prelude: Entering “Nature’s Nation”	27
	References	40
3	“Naturalizing” Asian Americans: Edith Eaton	43
1	Native/Nativism	44
2	Native/Nature/Naturalization	46
3	Naturalization/Animalization: Pets and Pests	48
3.1	Pets and Curiosities	50
3.2	Pests: The Yellow Peril	51
4	Edith Eaton’s Limited Options	56
5	Eaton’s “Fauna”: Resisting Naturalization	61
6	Eaton’s “Flora”: Benevolent Naturalization	66
7	The Quandary of Racist Animalization	75
	References	85

4	Thinking (Like a) Gold Mountain: Shawn Wong's Homebase and Maxine Hong Kingston's China Men	89
1	Asian/American Land(scapes)	91
1.1	Asian Americans and the American Land: A Fragile Connection	91
1.2	Nature and Work: Asian Americans Changing the Face of the Earth	93
2	Shawn Wong's Homebase: Claiming America Through Inlanding	96
2.1	Nature as Metaphorical Trope	98
2.2	From Analogy to Human Inlanding	100
2.3	"Yellowing" the Landscaped Indian	103
3	Maxine Hong Kingston's China Men: Claiming America Through Land Empathy	111
3.1	Land Ethics and Land Empathy	112
3.2	Homelands: Homelessness and Belonging	114
3.3	Claiming America Through Land Empathy	119
4	Agency and Voice: Can (Subaltern) Nature Speak?	126
	References	140
5	Cultivating the Anti-campo: An Environmental Reading of "Internment Literature"	147
1	From Camp to Campo	150
2	From Homo Sacer to Homo Ecologicus	154
2.1	Animal Spaces and Environment Shock	156
2.2	A Dialogue with the New Environment	166
3	The Pastoral and the Sublime: Escapism or Empowerment?	182
4	Cultivating the Anti-campo	191
	References	202
6	Facing the End of Nature: Karen Tei Yamashita and Ruth Ozeki	207
1	Ecocriticism and the End of Nature	209
2	Karen Tei Yamashita's Through the Arc of the Rain Forest: Transnational-Transnatural Post-Pastoralism	215
2.1	Plastic Flesh	215
2.2	The Junkyard in the Jungle	222
2.3	Transnational-Transnatural Post-Pastoralism	226

3	Ruth Ozeki's Novels: Materiality and Immateriality	230
3.1	Meat, Potatoes, and Gyres	230
3.2	Time-Space Beings: A Tale for a Globalized World	235
3.3	Buddhism and Quantum Physics: A Tale of the Immaterial World	244
4	The Many Layers of the Ozone Layer, or How to Reconcile the Material and the Immaterial	248
	References	260
7	Coda: Weedflowers, Gold Mountains, and Murky Globes	267
	References	269
	Index	271