

Contents

Introduction: Women in Iberian filmic culture: A tour of Spain and Portugal Elena Cordero-Hoyo and Begoña Soto-Vázquez	1
PART I: THE PRESENCE OF WOMEN IN IBERIAN CINEMAS	13
1. Fiction as a place of power: The presence of female directors throughout the history of Portuguese cinema Ana Catarina Pereira	14
2. The invisible women of Spanish cinema Annette Scholz	29
3. Três dias sem Deus by Bárbara Virgínia: A different form of representation Ricardo Vieira Lisboa	49
PART II: KILLING THE MUSE: WOMEN AS CREATOR	71
4. Gender violence and historical memory in Margarida Cardoso and Isabel Coixet Estela Vieira	72
5. 'People don't understand [the] world': The limits of transnational authorship in the cinema of Isabel Coixet Katarzyna Paszkiewicz	89
6. Murmuring colonial ghosts in Margarida Cardoso's filmography Adriana Martins	106
PART III: BEYOND THE AUTHOR: RECOGNIZING OTHER CINEMATOGRAPHIC PROFESSIONS	119
7. Weaving a cinematographic culture and writing about film, or how to reconstruct the subject of women in Spanish silent cinema Begoña Soto-Vázquez	120
8. A woman censor during the Portuguese dictatorship (1968–74) Ana Bela Morais	132
9. Costume designers in Portugal: A trade between art and technique, relegated to the status of 'a woman's thing' Caterina Cucinotta	146

PART IV: HISTORICAL MEMORY AND THE GENDERED ARCHIVE	163
10. Paradigms: Women filmmakers in 1970s revolutionary Portugal – Delgado, Nordlund, Cordeiro and Serra	164
Érica Faleiro Rodrigues
11. The mother awaits: Woman and landscape in Galician non-fiction cinema	177
María Soliña Barreiro González
12. Exploring the Portuguese memory through appropriation film: A toca do lobo (Mourão, 2015)	194
Elena Cordero-Hoyo
Notes on contributors	213