

Contents

Introduction: Evoking Spectres in History	1
1 Literary Archaeology: The Uncovering and Recovering of Black Historical Memory and Trauma in Toni Morrison's Beloved	25
2 Articulating "Silence": The Language of Death as Memory in Ama Ata Aidoo's The Dilemma of a Ghost	46
3 Bloodlines and Blurred Lines: Contested Memories and Freedom in Barbara Chase-Riboud's Sally Hemings	60
4 The Limitations of "History": Chika Ezeanya's Re-Visioning of the Early Years of Olaudah Equiano and Slavery in Before We Set Sail	77
5 (M)otherlands: Homesickness and Yearnings for Home in Yaa Gyasi's Homegoing	89
6 The Magic of "History" and Contradictions of "Return" to Africa in Syl Cheney-Coker's The Last Harmattan of Alusine Dunbar	101
Conclusion: Defining Silences	119
Works Cited	128
Index	138