
Preface	C. Fred Bergsten	xi
Introduction		1
1 The Japanese Economy: Past and Future		3
Japan's Pre-1986 Economic Performance in Comparative Perspective		3
Developments in 1986–87		7
Prospects for the Future		12
Domestic Demand–Based Growth		16
2 The Changing Pattern of International Specialization and Industrial Policy		23
Changes in Japanese Trade Patterns		23
Shifts in Japan's Comparative Advantage		27
Industrial Policy in Japan		35
Prospective Changes in International Specialization		42
3 Trade Policy		49
Formal Barriers to Imports		49
Informal Barriers to Imports		56
Japan's International Trade Position		62
Conclusion		72

4	Saving Behavior	77
	Japanese Saving in Comparative Perspective	77
	Personal Saving Behavior	84
	Business Saving Behavior	96
	Government Saving Behavior	98
	Policy Recommendations	100
	Conclusion	108
5	Investment Behavior	111
	Determinants of the Level of Investment	112
	Foreign Direct Investment	118
	Cyclical Variation in Investment Activity	125
	Policy Recommendations	129
	Conclusion	132
6	The Interaction of Domestic and International Macroeconomic Forces	135
	The Interaction of Macroeconomic Aggregates	135
	The Exchange Rate and the Japanese Trade Balance	141
	Recent Monetary and Fiscal Policy	147
	Macroeconomic Policy and the Current Account	149
	Conclusion	154
7	International Leadership	157
	Defense Issues	158
	Financial Assistance to Developing Countries	166
	Conclusion	173
8	Conclusions and Policy Recommendations	177
	Policy Dilemmas for Japan	177
	Policy Recommendations	178
	Japan's International Leadership Role	181
	Conclusion	187
	APPENDICES	191
	A The Estimation of Comparative Advantage	193
	B Informal Barriers to Imports	215
	C Explaining International Differences in Imports	239
	D The Interaction of Macroeconomic Forces	255