

Contents

Prologue: the final sorrows of empire – a Vietnam elegy	xi
The book in brief	xvi
Acknowledgments	xviii
The doomed fleets sail: the Pacific War for beginners	xxii
Japanese usage and style	xxv
Rise and fall	1
1 Roman questions: American empire and the Kyoto School	3
2 Revisionism: the end of White America in Japan studies	14
The decay of Pacific War orthodoxy	27
3 Philosophy and the Pacific War: Imperial Japan and the making of a post-White world	29
4 Scholarship or propaganda: neo-Marxism and the decay of Pacific War orthodoxy	46
5 Wartime Japan as it really was: the Kyoto School's struggle against Tojo (1941–44)	61
In defence of the Kyoto School	77
6 Taking Kyoto philosophy seriously	79
7 Racism and the black legend of the Kyoto School: translating Tanabe's The Logic of the Species	92

x Contents

8	When is a philosopher a moral monster? Tanabe versus Heidegger versus Marcuse	106
	Nazism and the crises of the Kyoto School	127
9	Heidegger, Nazism and the Farías Affair: the European origins of the Kyoto School crises	129
10	Heidegger and the wartime Kyoto School: after Farías – the first paradigm crisis (1987–96)	141
11	Nazism is no excuse: after Farías – the Allied Gaze and the second crisis (1997–2002)	151
	After America, philosophy	165
12	Nothing shall be spared: a manifesto on the future of Japan studies	167
	Appendix: translations of two texts by Hajime Tanabe	179
	‘The Philosophy of Crisis or a Crisis in Philosophy: Reflections on Heidegger’s Rectoral Address’ (1933)	181
	‘On the Logic of Co-prosperity Spheres: Towards a Philosophy of Regional Blocs’ (1942)	188
	Notes	200
	Select bibliography	220
	Index	231