Contents

Acknowledgements vii

Introduction Jenni Adams 1

1. VIOLENCE, AESTHETICS, COMPLICITY

Avoiding Evil in Perpetrator Fiction Robert Eaglestone 13
Reading (as) Violence in Jonathan Littell's The Kindly Ones Jenni Adams 25
Claude Lanzmann's Einsatzgruppen Interviews Sue Vice 47
Screening Women's Complicity in the Holocaust: The Problems of Judgement and Representation Adam Brown 69

2. REPRESENTATION AND UNDERSTANDING

The Perpetrator Occult:
Francis Bacon Paints Adolf Eichmann Lyndsey Stonebridge 93
The Modern Haman: Ghetto Diary Writers' Understanding of Holocaust Perpetrators Amy Simon 111
Reading the Female Perpetrator Antony Rowland 129

3. POLITICS, FORM AND GENRE

Downfall: The Nazi Genocide as a Natural Disaster Matthew Boswell 147
'Repetition, boredom, despair': Muriel Spark and the Eichmann Trial James Bailey 165
The Prisoner (1952) and the Perpetrator in Early Post-war British Television James Jordan 185

4. MEMORIES, SITES AND CONTEXTS

Visualising 'Everyday' Evil: The Representation of Nazi Perpetrators in German Memorial Sites Caroline Pearce 207
‘We Shall Be Punished’: Positionality and Postmemory in Rachel Seiffert’s The Dark Room and Uwe Timm’s In My Brother’s Shadow
Christine Berberich
231

Bruce Chatwin, W.G. Sebald and the Red-Brown Skin
Laurence Piercy
251

Perpetration, Guilt and Cross-Genre Representation in Ari Folman’s Waltz with Bashir
Eleanor Kent
271