

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: Death and a (Land?) Motive	1
1. Identity, Labor, and the Banana Economy	19
2. Development and Territorialization on the North Coast	35
3. Mestizo Irregularities, Garifuna Displacement, and the Emergence of a “Mixed” Garifuna Community	54
4. Gendered Rights and Responsibilities: Privatization and Women’s Land Loss in Sambo Creek	73
5. Representing the Garifuna: Development, Territory, Indigeneity, and Gendered Activism	90
6. Roots, Rights, and Belonging in Sambo Creek	115
7. “Businessmen Disguised as Environmentalists”: Neoliberal Conservation in Garifuna Territory	129
8. Research Voluntourism as Rights-Based Conservation: Could It Work?	153
9. Neoliberalism’s Limit Points in Post-Coup Honduras	168
Conclusion: Counterpunches to “Honduras Is Open for Business”	189
Notes	201
Bibliography	207
Index	227