Contents

List of figures xi
List of tables xii
Notes on contributors xiii

PART I
Theorizing race, class, and gender studies 1

1 Conceptualizing intersectionality in superordination: masculinities, whitenesses, and dominant classes 3
   Cliff Leek and Michael Kimmel

2 Unpacking the intersections of identity and politics and the politics of studying identity: a black feminist theoretical and epistemological tool kit 10
   Adryan Wallace

PART II
Conversations on race, class, and gender 19

3 Difficult conversations: race, class and gender in White Australia 21
   Brendan Churchill, Joselynn Baltra-Ulloa and Robyn Moore

4 Making visible the invisible: cultural scripts that inform relationships among African American women 29
   Toy Lisa Mitchell

5 Intersections in everyday conversations: racetalk, classtalk, and gendertalk in the workplace 44
   David G. Embrick and Kasey Henricks
PART III
Race, class, gender, and migration 59

6 Anti-immigrant sentiments and immigrant concentration at work in contemporary Japan
   \textit{Hiromi Ono and Hiroshi Ono} 61

7 Kurdish migrant women negotiating the complex web of gender, class, and ethnicity in the city
   \textit{Ozge Sensoy Bahar} 73

8 Muslim women and work in Scotland
   \textit{Masoumeh Velayati} 84

PART IV
Race, class, gender, and sexualities 103

9 Sex as subversion: the ethnosexual protestor and the ethnosexual defender
   \textit{Robert Reece} 105

10 Herbivore masculinity: opposition or accommodation to hegemonic masculinity?
    \textit{Justin Charlebois} 117

11 The (pink) elephant in the room: the structure and experience of race and violence in the lives of transgender prisoners in California
    \textit{Jennifer Sumner, Lori Sexton, Valerie Jenness, and Cheryl L. Maxson} 128

PART V
Race, class, gender, and education 145

12 The role of ethnicity, class, and gender in social capital formation: a case study of supportive peer networks among Somali working-class immigrant adolescents
   \textit{Moosung Lee} 147

13 Race, class, gender, and online courses in the academy: new questions for the twenty-first century
   \textit{Amitra A. Wall, Susan Mary Paige, and Joseph Marren} 161

14 Facing ethnic, gender, and class inequality in academia
   \textit{Nina Toren} 169
PART VI
Race, class, gender, and work

15 The empirical challenge of intersectionality: understanding race, class, and gender through a study of occupations
   Enobong Hannah Branch

16 Professional ghettoization: the clustering of workers at the intersections of gender, race, (and class)
   Joy Kadowaki

PART VII
Cultural contexts and identity

17 Realities and fluidity of race, class, and gender: different places, times, and contexts
   Shobha Hamal Gurung

18 "We’re 80 percent more patriotic": Atlanta’s Muslim South Asian Americans and cultural citizenship
   Stanley Thangaraj

PART VIII
Conclusion: contemporary trends in the intersection of race, class, and gender

19 Race, colour and class in Caribbean society
   Roy McCree

20 Gender, caste, and class: structural violence in India
   Mangala Subramaniam and Preethi Krishnan Ramaswamy

   Elizabeth M. Esterchild and Ray L. Darville

Index