

Contents

Introduction.....	7
 Chapter I: Axiological and Teleological Assumptions of Representation	 15
1. Representative Versus Direct Democracy	15
2. Accountability: Necessary Prerequisite of Representation	22
3. Crisis of Representative Democracy	27
4. Entropy of Representation: Teleological Source of Crisis	33
 Chapter II: Theoretical Concepts of Representation.....	 47
1. The Principium : Philosophical Concept of Representation	47
2. The Meritum : Juridical Concept of Representation	52
3. The Accessorium : Sociological Interpretation of Representation	57
4. Conjunction: Representation as a Correlation	64
5. Limits of Representation: Forms and Means of Correlation	72
 Chapter III: Historical and Doctrinal Embodiments of Representation.....	 81
1. Multivariant Applications of the Idea of Representation	81
2. The French Concept of Political Representation	87
3. The English Idea of Representation.....	98
4. Andrew Heywood's Retrospective Model of Representation	110
5. Other Diachronic Models and Scenarios of Representation	118
 Chapter IV: Constitutional Expression of Representation	 123
1. The Content of the Constitutional Principle of Representation: Rei Compertae	 123
2. The Sense of the Constitutional Principle of Representation	139
3. The Constitutional Expression of the Principle of Representation.....	145

4. Methods of Construing the Principle of Representation: Rei Dubiae	150
5. Legal Effects of the Constitutional Principle of Political Representation.....	158
 Chapter V: Representation and Interests.....	165
1. Representation as Aggregation and Articulation of Interests.....	165
2. Political vs. Functional Representation	168
3. Ethics in the Conduct of a Representative as a Politician	175
4. Legal Framework of a Representative's Ethics: Representative Mandate.....	180
5. Political Framework of a Representative's Ethics: Ties with Subgroup or Party.....	188
6. Functional Framework of a Parliamentarian's Ethics: Representation vs. Lobbying.....	195
 Conclusion	203
 Bibliography.....	213